WHY NOT BUILD WITH THE BEST MATERIAL ON EARTH

HOLLOW CONCRETE BUILDING BLOCKS

For Durability, Economy and Appearance, the best Building Material on earth, is Hollow Concrete Building Blocks.

Hollow Concrete Building Blocks increase their strength with age.

Hollow Concrete Building Blocks are universally used.

Hollow Concrete Building Blocks are used for residences, factories, churches, apartment houses, store buildings and foundation walls.

Cheaper than brick or stone, requiring no paint; warm in winter, cool in summer. Call and look over our factory. Estimates given on all classes of cement construction work.

OVERTURE

The fifth volume of the Wolverine Directory Co.'s directory is introduced to the public with every anticipation of its meeting a most flattering reception, for our labor has been long and wearisome, and now that our task is done, we are pleased to know that it eclipses all previous publications, a fact our readers will recognize and appreciate.

It has been our ambition to produce for our favorite city a book that is ahead of any Directory Published. We have tried hard and if we have succeeded in doing what we have striven for, we rest content.

The present population of the city we find to be 24,621, showing a steady increase in the past two years.

We know it is impossible to arrive at perfection, and we feel constrained to admit that we can lay no claim to infallibility. Feeling confident that we arrived as near to that point as possible, we ask your kind indulgence for any omissions or imperfections.

In conclusion we tender our heartfelt thanks to those business men who have encouraged this publication by their patronage, and hope for a continuation of their support in the future.

We are also sincerely grateful to the residents of this city who so cheerfully gave us the necessary information in order to fully achieve the object of our work.

Respectfully yours,

WOLVERINE DIRECTORY CO.

Hon. Seth Low,
Mayor of Greater New York.

It goes without saying that whenever a young man is kept from going to the bad, not only is the man himself saved, but the whole community is benefited; and whenever a young man is helped to make more out of his life than otherwise he could have made, not only is he helped, but the whole community again feels the benefit. And just such work as that is what the Young Men's Christian Association is doing wherever it can be found; and it does it in the very best possible way, through the personal influence of young men upon young men.

It is a Christian Association. All of its work it does under the inspiration of the spirit of Christ, the spirit that stands with bowed head in the presence of the recognized fatherhood of God, and the spirit that stretches out its hand while it has strength to command the movements of its arm to the service of its fellows.

The custom of drinking stimulating beverages is one that at least bears the mark of antiquity, and many and bitter have been the arguments for and against the custom. We do not in this brief review intend to defend our opinion or seek to antagonize those who have views contrary to our own experience, and the custom that has obtained for ages in the old world. Our country cannot be said to produce better people physically or mentally than those reared under a similar civilization, such as Germany, England, et al., and yet these countries may be considered as the home of liquor of every kind; and especially in Germany and England, malt liquors are used almost universally as the daily drink by the bulk of the population. In the face of this, who shall have the temerity to gainsay the mental and physical superiority of these nations? Were the logic of some of our temperance apostles true, the inhabitants of Germany—instead of attaining the proud eminence that they have attained—would, through the harmless habit of drinking beer, have become the most degraded people. Facts are however stubborn in their nature, and so Gambrinus is still hale and hearty, and very able to cope with any soda water dovotee we ever saw. Since that beer has become a necessity in the lives of so many of our citizens, it behoves him to select with caution the particular beverage they drink, least in these days of adulteration, they may be decoyed into using some articles possessing very deleterious qualities. No higher recommendation could be asked than that of the intelligent public and that has unanimously and unqualifiedly decided that the beer brewed by C. Kern's Brewery, of Port Huron, Mich., to be of the very highest class and absolutely free from all ingredients likely to effect the health, as it enjoys an inevitable reputation, for the quality of its brew and the uniform standard of excellence maintained for its beer. The brewery possesses all the necessary qualifications to win success, and as regards skill, capital, care and intelligence every requisite is at hand. The appliances and machinery used are of the latest improved patterns, and especially adapted for the scientific brewing of lager beer. The buildings occupied are large and commodious, and every labor saving device has been introduced which places them in a position to promptly meet the growing demand for their justly celebrated beer. Their celebrated brands are Pilsner and Kern's Favorite. A representative enterprise, ably managed and conducted upon a plan of broad and liberal principles and honorable policy, it is one of the most creditable business factors of the city.
